

Dear Princeton Families,

Welcome to the Second Quarter! The first quarter of this school year was quite unique, and we thank our students, staff, and parents/guardians for your flexibility. The second quarter may bring new challenges, but working together, we can continue to live our mission of empowering each student for college, career, and life success.

We will be implementing the following attendance updates in an effort to increase student academic achievement and participation.

Attendance for FULL REMOTE Students:

- Students must participate in live sessions (synchronous learning) for English (Reading), Math, Science, Social Studies, and elective classes
- Teachers will take attendance during live sessions
- Parents and/or students must contact teachers with a reason if they cannot attend live sessions
- If the recording is viewed in lieu of the live session, a teacher assignment must be completed
- Failure to participate in live sessions will result in up to two absences for the week if the teacher receives no communication from the parent or student
- Independent work (asynchronous learning) must also be submitted to reach full attendance for the week

Attendance for Scarlet/Gray AT HOME Learning weeks:

- Student must complete work daily as assigned by teacher
- Teacher will grade work and provide feedback to students' weekly
- Secondary teachers will submit at least two assignments in the grade book weekly
- Live learning sessions will be offered at all levels during the afternoon and students with technology are required to attend.

Students who fail to meet academic expectations will be required to attend our summer school program. Students who fail to meet attendance requirements may have truancy charges filed. It is critical that parents communicate with their child's teacher(s) and the school so that we can provide interventions to help with remote and at-home learning.

Please contact your child's building principal, counselor, or teacher with questions regarding student performance during the first quarter and the support that is available.
