Princeton High School Students Featured in New Exhibition at Taft Museum of Art

Seven Princeton High School students will be featured in an exclusive exhibition titled “Identity: (un)real” at the Taft Museum of Art this spring. The PHS students selected to display original artworks are: Skylar Adams, Andralyn Brown, Dan Flores, Leona Messer, Geydy Perez Santizo, Julia Ramsey, and Grant Smith.

“We are so thrilled for these talented students to have the opportunity to showcase their work with the Taft Museum of Art,” said Tom Burton, Princeton City School District Superintendent. “We pride ourselves at Princeton Schools on offering innovative learning opportunities both inside and outside the traditional classroom and this is a prime example of that - these artists are gaining a great experience that will prepare them for life beyond PCSD.”

The Taft Museum of Art will host a virtual exhibition and awards ceremony and will have a PCSD-only in-person viewing of the exhibition to limit the number of people at the exhibit to maintain current health and safety restrictions.

- Tuesday, April 13 at 6:30 p.m. - Virtual Exhibition and Awards Ceremony at bit.ly/ARC_2021
- Sunday, April 18 from 4-6 p.m. at The Annex Gallery, 1310 Pendleton Street, Cincinnati, OH.

“I am looking forward to celebrating this achievement together with this talented group of students as we view their original artworks in the “Identity (un)real” exhibition,” said Lindsay Holliday, art teacher at Princeton High School. “I encourage our community to join us for the experience and hear what our students are saying through their pieces.”

The artworks included in the exhibition are available to view on the Princeton City School District website at LINK.
